

ALLEN SWOPE IS NOW POSTMASTER

Change Made at Midnight Tuesday
When He Succeeded E. A. Remy
Who Served Four Years.

RETIRING OFFICIAL PRAISED

New Service Inaugurated and High Standard of Efficiency Distinguish the Administration.

After four years of efficient service as postmaster in Seymour Edward A. Remy retired from that position at midnight Tuesday and was succeeded by Allen Swope, former city mayor. The change of administration was made at the close of the first quarter of 1914. The retiring postmaster is completing the required report which will be filed with the postoffice department at Washington at the usual time. Mr. Remy will remain at the office for several days to assist his successor in any way he can.

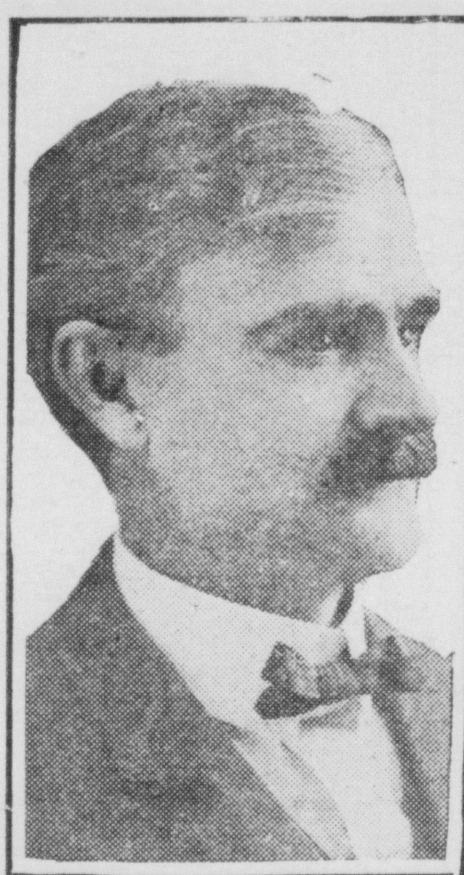

Postmaster Swope has had a long experience in Democratic politics in both Jackson county and in Indiana. He has a wide acquaintance in this part of the state. He served several terms in the state legislature having been elected from this county in 1892. The present free gravel road law under which many of the highways in this and other counties were built was presented by him and became a law largely through his influence and endeavors.

On November 2, 1909 Mr. Swope was elected mayor of Seymour and held that position until the first of this year when he was succeeded by Mayor Ross. His recommendation as postmaster in this city was made March 6 by Congressman Lincoln Dixon who for many years has been a warm personal friend of Mr. Swope. On February 16 he was nominated for the position by President Wilson and several days later the senate approved the nomination. He was authorized to take charge of the office Tuesday afternoon. His commission has been mailed from the department at Washington and will arrive here probably Thursday.

During the day Postmaster Swope has received many callers at his office who desired to extend congratulations. He is familiarizing himself with the routine duties of the office and is being shown the details of work by the retiring postmaster and the clerks.

Mr. Remy retires from the office with an enviable record of splendid service and efficiency. He had the reputation among the traveling public as being one of the most competent and accommodating postmasters in the central west. He was always ready and willing to show any courtesy to the patrons and the accommodations afforded by the postmaster and his clerks have been highly commended.

Mr. Remy became postmaster just four years ago. Since he has had charge of the office the gross receipts have increased almost twenty per cent, and the volume of mail handled now is very much larger than when he took charge of the office. He has given his personal attention to the work and was postmaster in fact as well as in name. When the new order was issued requiring postmaster to spend at least eight hours each day in the office it was said of Mr. Remy that the order would have the effect of reducing his working hours rather than increasing them. Besides supervising the work of office he was frequently seen at the general delivery window and assisted in the distribution of the mail. Almost every day he assisted the city carriers by delivering large parcel post packages to various parts of the city. He did this in order that all mail might be delivered as promptly as possible.

EDWARD A. REMY.

Who Retires From Service.

Four years ago there were but four city carriers but the volume of mail increased to such a point that it was necessary to add the fifth carrier. From this office eight rural routes are supplied. The auxiliary force in the office has been increased because of the larger mail and the operation of the eight-hour law governing clerks.

The arrangement of the schedule of working hours for the carriers and clerks made necessary by the new eight-hour regulation was probably the most difficult problem presented to Mr. Remy for solution during his term of postmaster. Under the former regulation clerks and carriers were required to work ten hours in twenty-four but under the new order the schedule had to be arranged so that no clerk would work more than eight hours in any ten consecutive hours. Efficiency of service has at all times been the goal of Mr. Remy and in rearranging this schedule it was necessary that the high standard of excellent service be maintained. He was able to meet the test, however, and his schedule was accepted by the department without alteration.

Another important change that was made during the administration of the retiring postmaster was the inauguration of the parcel post system. This resulted in a much larger amount of mail to be handled by the clerks and carriers and consequently several changes were necessary so that there would be no delays. The parcel post department has grown steadily since it was inaugurated and hundreds of packages in this class are handled each week. To place this new service in operation was no easy task as it was entirely new to the postal business.

On August 26, 1911, the postal savings bank law became effective

SKULL FRACTURED
BY FALLING TIMBER

Charles Stewart Instantly Killed
While Working on Gravel "Dump" at Rockford.

HEAVY FRAME WORK FALLS

One of Braces Shaken by Strong Gust of Wind and Workman is Caught Under Structure.

Charles Stewart was the victim of a fatal accident at Rockford about 10:30 o'clock this morning when he was crushed under the heavy timbers used in the frame work of a gravity gravel "dump" which collapsed when one of the braces was shaken by a strong gust of wind. He was struck on the head by one of the heavy timbers and his skull was fractured in several places. His death occurred instantly.

The "dump" is being built by Ed Miller, John Rapp and S. E. Enos at the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near the canning factory. It will be used in loading the freight cars with gravel from the beds along White River. The frame work had been placed in position and braces arranged to hold it. The timbers were very heavy, however, and when one of the braces was shaken by the wind it toppled over and the other gave way allowing the entire structure to fall.

Stewart and Rapp were under the frame work sawing a piece of timber in two. Rapp saw the brace fall and the frame moved and shouted a warning to Stewart. Rapp succeeded in getting from under the falling timber and was not injured.

Evidently Stewart did not see the swaying timbers or hear the warning of Rapp. He was struck on the head by a heavy post and his death occurred instantly. Several timbers fell on top of him but it is thought that the blow was the cause of his death. His skull has a long fracture extending from the left eye to the middle part of his head. Another fracture was also found on the right side.

Coroner William Dailey and Frank J. Voss, an undertaker, were called to Rockford and went after the body. It was brought to Voss' Undertaking Establishment where it was prepared for burial. Several workmen saw the accident and were subpoenaed to appear at the inquest which was conducted by the coroner this afternoon.

Stewart was forty-three years of age and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Stewart, who live in this city. He was employed at the Seymour Manufacturing Company for some time and also worked at the pumping station at Rockford about a year ago. February, last, he moved to Rockford and was employed in the construction of the gravel "dump". He is survived by his widow and five children. He was an industrious, hard working man and was well liked by those who knew him.

The arrangements for the funeral will be announced later.

PYTHIAN SISTERS
MEET IN SEYMOUR

Success Temple Entertains Delegates and Visitors at Eleventh District Meeting.

DINNER SERVED AT NOON

Closed Session Held This Afternoon and Degree Work Will be Given Tonight.

Members of Success Temple of Pythian Sisters are today entertaining a large number of delegates and visitors from practically every Temple in the Eleventh district. The occasion is the annual district meeting which convened this afternoon and will be continued until tonight. Both sessions are for the members only.

The district is composed of several counties in this section of the state. It is expected that more than one hundred and twenty-five visitors will be present for the meeting this evening. Delegates are registered from Columbus, Brownstown, Scottsburg, New Albany, Jeffersonville, Bethlehem, Houston, Hardensburg, Campbellsburg, San Jacinto, Comiskey, Versailles, Bedford and other places. Many of the delegates arrived this morning and others were expected on the late afternoon trains and traction cars.

The meeting this afternoon was called to order by Mrs. Ruth Patton, of New Albany, district deputy. The invocation was pronounced by Mrs. A. Clemments, of Brownstown, after which the welcome address was given by Mrs. Emma Geile. Mrs. Carrie Mullineaux, of New Albany, grand senior, responded upon behalf of the visitors.

A duet was given by Mesdames E. Carter and Elliott. Judge John M. Lewis, grand-chancellor of the Indiana K. of P. Lodge, delivered an address. A vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. Ella Kietheley, of New Albany. Mrs. Eunice Gillaspay, of Crothersville, read a paper, the subject being one in which the members of the order are interested. Another paper was read by Mrs. Lennie Utz, of New Albany, and a solo was given by Mrs. Edna Tyler, of Georgetown. The address of Mrs. Laura Smith, of Marion, grand chief, was one of the features of the afternoon session. After a reading by Mrs. Zelma Leas, of this city, the reports of the Temples were read. Committees were appointed by the grand chief before the meeting adjourned.

The session tonight will be one of unusual interest as the degree work will be exemplified by Success Temple. The lodge will be opened in ritualistic form and the district officers will be installed by Mistletoe Lodge. After the degree is conferred the discussion on "How to Get and Keep Members" will take place.

A dinner was served in the hall on the second floor of the K. of P. building at noon today and was enjoyed by a large number of delegates and local members. The social feature of the meeting is especially pleasant and the reception committee has left nothing undone for the pleasure of visitors.

THE IDEAL GLASSES

are those that enable one to see the best and clearest without fatiguing the eyes. That is the kind we always supply to our patrons, and that is the only kind that any person—young or old—should wear. Any other sort of glasses will surely result in injury to the sight. We examine eyes, provide the correct lenses for glasses.

MRS. ELIZABETH CORYELL
DEAD AT AGE OF 79 YEARS

Had Been in Poor Health for Some Time From Effects of Cancer of the Stomach.

Mrs. Elizabeth Coryell died Tuesday night at 9:50 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Q. Foster, near Beech Grove, where she made her home. She had been in poor health for some time and seriously sick for the last month with cancer of the stomach. Her age was 79 years, 3 months and 8 days. Mrs. Coryell was born in Ohio Dec. 23, 1834. She came to Indiana with her parents when quite young and settled near Cana. She has lived in this neighborhood practically all her life. Her husband Edwin Coryell died in 1904. Mrs. Coryell leaves one brother, I. M. Foster of Edinburg, one sister, Mrs. Mary Steele of Kansas, three sons, Hector of Louisville, O. M. who lives near Uniontown, and Gilbert of Jeffersonville, two daughters, Mrs. John Q. Foster and Mrs. A. W. Rogers both of whom live in the Beech Grove and Cana neighborhoods. Besides her children she leaves twenty-one grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren. She was a charter member of the Uniontown Baptist church where the funeral will be held at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Burial at Coryell cemetery.

SECTION MEN REPAIR THE TRACTION CROSSING AGAIN

Foundation is Weakened by Surface Water and Attempts to Drain
it Away Have Failed.

Two sections of B. & O. Southwestern track repair employees were at work today repairing the I. & L. Traction crossing on Chestnut street. This crossing has given much trouble and hundreds of dollars have been spent in trying to keep it in a good condition. The crossing passes over the lowest part of the street and all the surface water runs in that direction. This keeps the soil in a wet, soggy condition and in very little time the rails are out of line. At one time a tile was placed at the crossing with the hope that some of the trouble could be eliminated but it did very little good.

The repair work is done under the supervision of the division engineer's office of the B. & O. Southwestern and the expense is divided equally between the two companies. The work is arranged so that there will be no interference with the traffic. The local car due here about 1 o'clock from the south was delayed a short time today as the rails were removed so the cross ties could be placed in position. None of the B. & O. trains were delayed.

Nazarene Revival.

The revival is now on. Sixteen at the altar last night. Seventy-five or more in the past twelve days. Last Friday we had a fast day with an attendance of more than thirty-five. We desire to announce another day of fasting and prayer for next Friday. We will meet at the church at noon for prayer. Come from the shop and factory just as you are. If you can't stay the entire hour come and stay as long as you can. The God of our forefathers is hearing and answering prayer in Seymour now. The sermon last night on "Crossing the Dead Line" was very impressive. Come tonight.

REINFORCEMENTS
SENT BY HUERTA

Occupation of Torreon by Mexican Constitutionalists Menaced by The Federals.

BOTH ARMIES EXHAUSTED

Believed That This Battle Will Constitute Principal Fighting of Revolution.

Juarez, Mexico, April 1—That the occupation at Torreon by the Mexican Constitutional troops under General Francisco Villa is being seriously menaced was the word brought here today in unofficial dispatches from Torreon to General Venustiano Carranza and other chiefs of the revolution. Advancing on the city from the east is a column of Federals. To intercept and disperse this force, Villa today sent his Morelos brigade, commanded by General Thomas Urbina and General Herrera's Zacatecas brigade, numbering in all 3,500 men. Urbina set out for San Pedro and Herrera for Paris. It is supposed that the Federal reinforcements are those ordered from Saltillo and Monterey recently by General Huerta, under command of General De Moure.

Although General Villa, late yesterday afternoon, telegraphed rebel officials here that "Torreon has fallen", and that his troops were in possession of the city, not another word has come from him. Some rebel officers express the opinion that Villa's announcement may have been premature.

There is a feeling among the rebels here that the Torreon battle will constitute the principal fighting of the whole Mexican revolution and that when Villa has once swept the country about that city clean of Federals, his march to the south will not be seriously opposed until he approaches close to Mexico City itself. Both armies are said to be so worn and exhausted by continued fighting that the present action lacks the virility of the rebel conquest of Gomez Palacio.

WERE PAID BY DONN ROBERTS

Startling Evidence Was Brought Out in the Trial of Terre Haute's Mayor, Accused of Election Frauds, Two Witnesses Who Testified to "Repeating" at Registration Booths Under Roberts Pay Being Mere Boys.Terre Haute, Ind., April 1.—Startling tales of crimes against the ballot were told to the jury in the trial of Donn M. Roberts, accused of election frauds, by Walter A. Myers, John Lindsey, Edwin Wise and Hubert Kintz. Two of the witnesses—Lindsey and Kintz—are mere youths, still in their teens, and both testified under oath that they had falsely registered under assumed names at many different voting places in Terre Haute.Hubert Kintz is only seventeen years old. He told of driving an automobile to numerous places where both he and four other men in the car got out and registered, presenting registration certificates that had been filled out at Democratic headquarters prior to starting on the "repeating" process.All four witnesses examined declared they had been paid for their services by Donn Roberts in person, while on one or two occasions a person identified with Roberts paid the wages to the men.The testimony of young Lindsey brought out the story of a roundup of absent voters' affidavits alleged to have been made by Jack Nugent and a man by the name of Jackson. Nugent, during the time of registration last autumn, was posing as Progress-told substantially the same story through a rigid cross-examination.

The testimony linked several promi-

Poisoned Blood Quickly Cleansed

In Any Form of Blood Trouble the Cure is Rapid.

An astonishing record of serious blood poisoning is daily brought to our attention. And most if not all these startling calamities could be averted were the blood primed, toned and purified in advance by that wonderful remedy known everywhere as S. S. S. Few people realize how quickly the system becomes infected with the acids and ferments from undigested food, constipation and inactive kidneys.

The symptoms are fever, thirst, excitability, dry skin followed by rash, and many indications wrongly diagnosed as Pimples, Boils, etc. This condition is almost universal in all climates and is quickly overcome by the action of S. S. S.

The medicinal properties of S. S. S. are relatively just as essential to well balanced health as are the nutritive properties of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food. And if you will bear this fact in mind and get your blood under the dominating influence of S. S. S. you will not only drive out those impurities that cause Rheumatism, Catarrh, Eczema, Pimples, Boils and thin anemic blood, but you will feel anew the thrill of health that can come only from a purified blood stream.

Do not accept anything else in place of S. S. S.; pay no attention to the "Just as Good" claims of those who would sacrifice your health to make an extra profit. S. S. S. contains no minerals, no crude drugs, nothing but the most beneficial botanical materials. So be sure and get S. S. S. and avoid disappointment. Get a bottle today and write for free advice to The Swift Specific Co., 222 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

AMERICAN CHILDREN ARE REMARKABLY WELL DRESSED TODAY

Whereas it is a great temptation to dress the dainty little maid of 3 or 4 in frills and furbelows, much as one would a doll, American mothers refrain to a degree that is noticeable and praiseworthy.

The child, as soon as she is old enough to notice her clothes, takes strong likes and dislikes; if she has been dressed always according to the standards of good taste, she will naturally show good taste in after years, when she has to guide herself in sartorial matters.

Rich silks and velvets, too much lace and too many frills, have no place in the small wardrobe this season. The long waisted styles are still favored and for "dress-up" occasions, modernized Greenaway dresses are quite popular.

No. 3260 is a little dress in drop-shouldered style fashioned of linen, which will be preferred this season to many of the other materials, and trimmed with two straight, gathered ruffles of embroidery; it shows one of the new yoke effects that will be popular. For a child of 6, this model requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material.

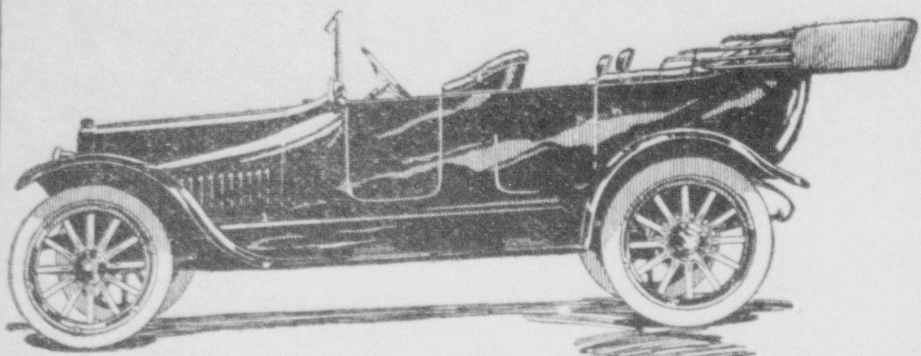

No. 8293 shows a very quaint dress for a girl of from 14 to 18; the blouse, which is unusually long waisted, is developed in a flowered crepe; the skirt is of black taffetas. In size 16, this dress may be made with 5 1/2 yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8260—sizes 2 to 10.
No. 8293—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

APRIL SHOWERS OF SUNSHINE.

A good many substantial April Showers of Sunshine—the sunshine of real dollars—are going to come to advertisers this month.

This is because they are shrewd enough to advertise in the modern way—through the newspapers—frequently with direct co-operation between manufacturer and merchant.

Results can almost be forecast—for this kind of advertising is going directly into the homes when the people are in a mood for buying.

And this means that business will come to the men who are going after it.

Any manufacturer or merchant interested in newspaper advertising is invited to address the American Newspaper Publishers Association, Bureau of Advertising, World Building, New York.

MOSS ON OLD OAKEN BUCKET FILLED WITH MICROBES

Departments of Agriculture Finds That Out of 411 Shallow Wells in Indiana 209 Were Impure.

By United Press.

The Old Oaken Bucket has been relegated to the ash heap by the Department of Agriculture which, on investigation, has found that its moss covered sides are full of microbes and the iron hoops are anything but sanitary. Of 411 shallow farm wells examined in Indiana the waters of 209 were very bad, 43 were doubtful, and only 159 received clean bills of health. In Minnesota 79 wells were examined and 59 were found to be polluted. Deep wells are not exempt from suspicion, for out of 117 of such, the waters of 45 were found to be bad and 16 were doubtful. Even in the bubbling spring, the last stronghold of the rural pest, the insidious germ has been found germinating and such sources of supply should be carefully watched.

"Twenty-five of the polluted wells in Minnesota were bad only because of poor surface protection and could easily have been made safe," says a bulletin of the Department which outlines a simple sanitary system for the farm home. "Practically all of the surface supplies were polluted. During these investigations 23 of the farms examined showed a record of typhoid fever. Surface water supplies should not be used for household purposes or for washing milk cans. They should not even be used for laundry purposes unless no other supply is available. Rain water from the roof is often polluted by dust, decayed leaves and other foreign matter. The underground cistern should be of water-tight construction to prevent pollution from the neighboring soil. There should also be suitable provision for straining or filtering the water previous to its entrance to the cistern." When the farmer figures on his water supply the amount needed is a vital item, and to help him on this point the Department has prepared a table on water consumption. Each member of the family needs from 25 to 40 gallons per day, probably depending on their individual tastes in bathing through the bulletin is silent on this point. Each horse requires 12 gallons per day, a cow needs 10 gallons, a hog 2½, and a sheep 2 gallons. For the family of six a 200 gallon supply should be sufficient if the water is used for the house only. On a farm where water is supplied to a family of six persons, 10 horses, 12 cows, 25 hogs and 15 sheep the daily storage supply should be at least 500, in addition to whatever supply the farmer deems necessary for fire protection.

FOR STATE SUPERINTENDENT.
(From Vincennes Capital.)

At the approaching state Republican convention the name of President Horace Ellis of Knox county, will be presented as an aspirant for the nomination to the office of superintendent of public instruction. In yielding to the demand of hundreds of Indiana Republicans to permit his name to be used as a candidate for this office Dr. Ellis sacrifices a strong desire to be merely a worker for party success, and will at once enter upon an aggressive campaign for the honor of a nomination.

The Second District will be a unit for him, and with the co-operation of all other parts of the state will undoubtedly succeed in procuring the nomination for the Knox county educator. And what other man, after all, can lend such substantial support to the ticket as Dr. Ellis? Throughout a lifetime he has been actively engaged in educational work of the state; as rural teacher, as village principal, as city superintendent, as state normal president, and finally as university president—certainly his professional experience ought to commend him to the Indiana voters with peculiar charm. In his work with Indiana teachers as institute lecturer, he has become well acquainted with hundreds of the teachers who will welcome his candidacy.

Brought up in Morgan county, of country parentage, trained in the country schools at the outset, he appreciates the life of Indiana's farmer-folks completely. A graduate of the State university, post graduate of Butler college, he enjoys the confidence of college men throughout the state. Active in church work, he is much sought after for addresses before church Brotherhoods and other religious bodies. He is a Knight Templar and has taken great interest in the work of the Commandery. His nomination is confidently expected by his friends.

ALLEN SWOPE IS NOW POSTMASTER

and since that time the local office has handled over $25,000 in that department alone. Many other minor changes have been inaugurated by the retiring postmaster which have resulted in an improvement in the service and have placed the local office among the first in the country from the standpoint of efficiency.

Mr. Remy has not yet decided what line of activity he will pursue. He has had little time to consider this as the work in connection with the close of his term of office has been heavy but he will give his attention to the future as soon as he leaves the office. He will remain for several days and will give the new official the benefit of his experience.

In assuming his new duties the task of Postmaster Swope is not to be underestimated. Each day many details which have a direct effect upon the service must be dealt with and none of these can be slighted. However, the new postmaster is qualified to continue the present efficiency of the office. His ability as a business man is well known and he will have no difficulty in managing the affairs in a very satisfactory manner.

In speaking of his retirement Mr. Remy referred to the loyalty of the corps of clerks and carriers and said they were entitled to credit for whatever efficiency had been maintained. He said they had given their best efforts to better the service of the local office and their work should not be overlooked. During the holiday season and other rush times they have worked long hours and have at all times endeavored to handle the incoming and outgoing mail with the greatest possible dispatch.

ATTENTION MUST BE GIVEN TREES PLANTED ON ARBOR DAY

Tree Expert Says They Must be Watched Carefully if They Grow to Maturity.

By United Press.

Washington, April 1.—Three spadeful of rich, pulverized earth will do more to make a young tree grow than a thirty-minute Arbor Day address by the president of the school board and a patriotic anthem by the senior class according to Dr. Furman L. Mulford today, tree expert for the Department of Agriculture. Not that Dr. Mulford would abbreviate the ceremonies attendant upon Arbor Day planting, today or on future Arbor Days, but because they do not mean much unless the trees planted receive proper and constant care. For what the Fourth of July is to the War and Navy Departments and what Labor Day is to the Department of Labor, Arbor Day is to the Department of Agriculture.

While the Forestry Bureau has concerned itself primarily with trees from a standpoint of the timber supply, Dr. Mulford has been making a study of trees best adapted for streets and cities generally. And nobody is more interested than he in what Arbor Day signifies or how trees should be chosen and reared.

"We need trees most where our population is the thickest, and some trees, like some people, are not adapted to such a life," said Dr. Mulford. "For street or school yard planting one of the first considerations is a hardy tree, that can find nourishment under brick pavements or granite sidewalks. It must be one that branches high from the ground, and ought to be native to the country and climate. America has the prettiest native trees and shrubs in the world and it is true patriotism to recognize them.

"For southern states one of the prettiest and best of shade trees is the laurel oak, and there will be thousands of them planted today. It is almost an evergreen and is a quick growing tree. The willow oak is another. A little farther north the Red oak is one of the most desirable, and in many places the swamp maple grows well, though this latter American elm when it reaches the majesty of its maturity and I do not believe it will ever cease to be a favorite. One thing about it, though, is the elm beetle, a pest which is spreading and which will kill some of our most beautiful trees unless spraying is consistently practiced. China berry trees, abundant in the south, and box elders, native to a score of states, are quick growing but they reach maturity too soon to go to pieces."

"What is the reason so many 'Arbor Day' trees die?" Dr. Mulford was asked. "Usually lack of protection, and often lack of care in planting," was the answer. "When the new tree begins to put out tender rootlets a child brushing against it or 'inspecting' it too closely will break them off and it dies. Or stock will nip off the new leaves and shoots and the result is the same. A frame around the tree would prevent this. Then, often wild trees are too big when planted or transplanted. Such trees have usually only a few long roots and so much of these are lost in transplanting that the large trunk cannot be nourished by the remainder. With nursery trees the larger they are the better it is, for they have a lot of small roots that do not have to be cut off.

"Fruit trees are seldom a success as shade trees, either along a street or road or in a yard. In the first place their branches are too low and unless carefully pruned their shape is irregular. Then they are subject to so many pests that unless constant care is given them they will not bear a hatful of fruit a season. On the other hand nut trees are usually very hardy and add much to the landscape. Pecan, chestnut, walnut and shaggy bark hickory are some of the more popular varieties." Strangely enough the first Arbor Day was observed in Nebraska which has fewer natural trees than any other state. This was in 1872, and Kansas was the second to observe the day, falling into line in 1875. Incidentally Kansas ranks next to Nebraska in dearth of trees. The Arbor Day idea originated with J. Sterling Morton, a Nebraskan who was appointed secretary of Agriculture by Cleveland. Now every state in the Union recognizes the day and New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and others have gotten out extensive Arbor Day booklets giving information concerning native trees and birds, and most of them even contain appropriate songs and poems for Arbor Day programs.

EACH GENERATION DECLINING PHYSICALLY, SAYS DR. HURTY

State Health Commissioner Attacks Restriction of Rumping and Playing Enjoyed by Children.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 1.—"If your child does not have bright eyes, rosy cheeks, red lips, good teeth and good digestion, he is abused." That statement from Dr. J. N. Hurty, coupled with the assertion that "each succeeding generation is poorer physically than the one before it," had caught the interest of the public generally today. Dr. Hurty is the state health commissioner.

Dr. Hurty attacks the "pushing" of children in schools, especially when under insanitary conditions.

"Rumping and playing are restricted. The children must often breathe bad air, too cold or too warm. They must sit at desks they do not fit, with the result of rounded shoulders, hollow chests and bent spines," he says in his bulletin issued from the state health office.

All the evidence, he says, confirms the statement that the human race is going backward mentally and physically, in spite of the advance in science. The child of wealth is as much affected as the poor child.
"The corroding influence of wealth breeds children weak of morals and vitality, and poverty breeds the same kind of children," he says.

Heredity is usually not sufficiently considered, he says, and when he plunges into a criticism of the school conditions. He adds that the failure to remove and look after such physical defects as decayed teeth, defective vision, running ears, enlarged tonsils, adenoids and under and over feeding has much to do with the deterioration of the human race.

COOLER WEATHER IS THE PREDICTION FOR THURSDAY

Heavy Rain Falls Tuesday Night and Hail is Reported Today Two Miles South of City.

More fond hopes of the lovers of springtime were shattered again today by the weather prediction of colder tomorrow. The drop in temperature is expected to follow closely after the showers of rain. The mercury has been kept on the move during the last twenty-four hours by the variations in temperature.

The heavy rains last night cause a small rise of the streams and the result was seen in White River today.
At Rockford the river is about bank full but an overflow is not expected unless the rains should continue.
Heavy showers north would result in a rise in White River at Rockford.
During the showers this afternoon
some hail fell about two miles south of the city. The hail stones were not large.

THE PRESIDENT WAS SUSTAINED

House Passes Repeal Bill By Majority of 86.

NOTABLE SCENE IN CHAMBER

Not For Years Has a Vote in the Lower House Been Followed With Such Close Attention as That Which Marked the Test of the Administration's Strength Over the Canal Tolls Controversy.

Washington, April 1.—With the exception of Representatives Cullip and Gray, who are in Indiana, every member of the Indiana delegation voted to repeal the free tolls provision of the Panama canal act. Mr. Cullip is at his home in Linton looking after his political fences, and Mr. Gray was attending the Sixth district convention at Richmond.

Washington, April 1.—The actual passage of the Panama tolls repeal bill came as an anti-climax to the excitement which had pervaded the great hall of representatives up to and during the remarkable speech of Champ Clark. It was preceded by a brief speech by Representative Adamson, who had led the administration forces through the long and arduous hours of four days of legislative battle.

At the conclusion of his speech, Mr. Adamson moved the engrossment and third reading of the bill. This under ordinary circumstances is more or less of a formality, but Republican Leader Mann demanded the ayes and noes.

With extraordinary silence the roll proceeded. Not once in the course of the thirty-five minutes required to call and tabulate the roll did the speaker have to ask for order. The house was as silent as a tomb, except for the penetrating tones of the reading clerk, calling the names in his sing-song voice and the staccato "ayes" and "noes" from the members. The roll call resulted in an administration victory, 247 to 160, a net majority of 87 for the motion. Everybody was expecting a Wilson victory, but the announcement of the vote by the speaker was greeted with prolonged cheers from the Democratic side of the house and scattering applause from the Republicans.

Immediately order was restored. Representative O'Shaughnessy of Rhode Island, a Democrat, and member of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, presented a motion to recommit and the roll call was resumed.

The roll call had proceeded through less than one hundred names when it became evident that the motion to recommit would be lost. Nevertheless there were about fifteen shifts across the original lines of demarcation, and when the result had been tabulated it was announced that the motion to recommit had been lost by a vote of 232 to 176. The majority against recommitment was only 56.

This brought squarely before the house the opportunity to vote upon the Sims repeal bill itself. The reading clerk rushed through the roll at express train speed. On this vote the ayes were 248, the noes 162, and the administration bill had won its way through the house of representatives by a majority of 86.

The following tabulation shows just how party lines were given in the vote:

For the bill—Democrats, 221; Republicans, 25; Progressives, 2; total, 248.

Against the bill—Republicans, 95; Democrats, 52; Progressives, 15; total, 162.

Now Up to the Senate.

The tolls repeal bill is now up to the senate. It reached the upper house today and was at once referred to the committee on interoceanic canals. The administration leaders admit that they are deeply concerned over the situation in the senate. The claim put forward by the president's friends is that they have a certain majority of two. This is admittedly "too close for comfort."

The key to the situation is held by a small coterie of regular Republicans. The Wilson supporters also are doubtful about one or two progressive Republicans, particularly Senator Gronna of North Dakota, who had been supposed to be in favor of repeal, but who within a few days has appeared to waver. Senator Gronna is a very close friend of Senator La Follette and the Wisconsin senator is apparently opposed to the repeal. Senator Oliver of Pennsylvania, who voted against exempting coastwise vessels when the bill first passed the senate, is reported to be wavering. There is a suggestion in administration circles that some of the Republican senators will try to play politics with the issue on the theory that the defeat of repeal in the senate would greatly embarrass the administration and lead to a schism in the Democratic party.

On the Democratic side the leading opponents of repeal are Senators O'Gorman, Chamberlain, Walsh, Ransdell, Thomas, Ashurst, Vandaman and Martine. There are many wavering senators who will probably line up with the president. Senators Pittman and Newlands are in this class. They are nearer to the Pacific coast and subject to the influences that control the representatives from that locality, but both are expected to line up finally with the president.

FRANK S. CALDWELL

Nominee to Succeed Himself on Appellate Court Bench.

The progressive Republicans almost to a man are opposed to the repeal. Senator Borah and Senator Poindexter will fight repeal. The administration will have strong support from Senators Root, Lodge, McCumber and Brandegee.

Any poll made of the senate at this time would not be reliable. A change of four or five votes would swing the result, and it is admitted even by the friends of the administration that more than that number of senators are within the doubtful zone. One thing is certain, the question will not be brought to a vote in the senate as early as the president and his friends expect. Some of the more enthusiastic and optimistic of the president's supporters have predicted that the bill would not require more than ten days in the senate. But older and more experienced legislators say that at least a month will be consumed in debate.

MANY MINERS GO OUT IN ABSENCE OF SCALE

Believed Strike Will Be a Long and Bitter One.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 1.—Sixteen thousand coal miners in the Fifth sub-district of Ohio, which includes the mines of eastern Ohio and northern West Virginia, laid down their tools at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, owing to the miners and operators failing to agree on a wage scale or plan a working agreement, and although the scale did not expire until midnight, the strike in this district was on. The miners believe the strike will be long and bitter. Neither side in this district has made an effort to arrange a conference.

TORREON NOW IN HANDS OF VILLA

Beleaguered City Falls Before Rebel Onslaught.

DAYS OF DESPERATE FIGHTING

Story of the Fall of Torreon Will Be Written in Mexican History as One of Its Bloodiest Chapters, the Campaign Showing the Capacity of the Mexican For Suffering With Iron Fortitude.

Juarez, April 1.—Advices have been received at rebel headquarters here announcing the capture of Torreon by Villa. The report also says that confirmation of the fall of the city has been wired to Washington by American Consul Marion Letcher at Chihuahua.

The losses to the rebel army in the twelve days' fighting are estimated at close to 2,500 killed and wounded. General Maximo Garcia was badly wounded and Trinidad Rodriguez killed. The federals lost Generals Pena, Ocaranza and Anaya and Colonel Victor Huerta, son of the president. General Velasco, federal commander, is reported by the prisoners to have gone mad in the trenches and to be held under a heavy guard by his own army. Five hundred federals deserted to the rebels and hundreds more are reported to have straggled out along the railway lines. Velasco lost hundreds of his men through desertion, but the majority of the federal soldiers remained with him and fought bravely.

The fighting in Torreon was as fierce as in Gomez Palacio. The rebels soon took the outskirts of the city by means of cannon firing and cavalry charges. Then they silenced the federal batteries on the hills in the rear of the town. The fighting often was of a hand-to-hand character, the rebels using their hand grenades with deadly effect. As in Gomez Palacio, the rebel artillery ammunition was of little use and Villa will make no further campaign until he can import ammunition to fit the field pieces.

The federals had the advantage of fighting behind fortifications and the rebels had to charge through the open streets. This caused terrific slaughter to the attacking army. The loss in the battle of Torreon is the heaviest in the history of the Mexican rebellion. It cost more lives than Pancho Villa had counted on. Trainloads of wounded are now scattered from Torreon to Chihuahua and the dead are everywhere lying on the battlefield, in the improvised fortresses and scattered along the lonely railway right of way, where the bodies were dropped from hospital trains.

The story of the attack upon Gomez Palacio and Torreon should be written in Mexican history as one of its bloodiest chapters. It also should be written down to the credit of the bravery of the Mexicans—not the rebel nor the federal alone, but the Mexican—for both sides fought with the utmost bravery, suffered the most trying hardships and showed great courage, moral and physical. Men suffering from wounds bore up without a murmur as they dragged themselves bleeding to the rear; men stormed what seemed to be impregnable fortifications without so much as debating whether success were possible or not; men went for days without food or water without complaining. The campaign has shown the capacity of the Mexican for suffering with fortitude; it has shown he is brave as the bravest. The battle has been one to test the nerves of the Anglo-Saxon, the Latin, or the man of any race, and the Latin has stood the acid.

The fall of Torreon into the hands of the rebels gives them control absolutely of northern Mexico. Torreon is hardly half way from Juarez to Mexico City and much country must be negotiated before the national capital is reached, much of it capable of fortification and strong resistance.

A WARNING TO AMERICANS

Don't Waste Money Going After Old English Estates.

London, April 1.—The American embassy has issued a warning to Americans not to waste their money in trying to establish claims to estates in the British chancery courts. The notice says the statute of limitations almost invariably outlaws all such claims. These warnings have been issued before by other American ambassadors, but nevertheless the embassy is constantly in receipt of inquiries as to certain estates, many of which never existed.

LAWYERS PLEAD GUILTY

Brothers Admit Contributing to Delinquency of Young Girl.

Columbus, O., March 31.—Sentence was reserved until next Saturday, when Hosea and Delano Warden, brothers, members of the local bar, appeared in court and pleaded guilty before Probate Judge Black upon charges of contributing to the delinquency of Hazel Traphagan, aged seventeen. The Wardens, members of one of the first families of Columbus, failed to appear in court when their cases were called and officers were sent after them.

Two women who were arrested in connection with the same case entered pleas of guilty several days ago and sentence upon them had been deferred until Saturday.

Disturbing News.

He walked home swiftly through the early night, his brain seething with tumultuous thoughts. The revelations of the day were staggering; the whole universe seemed to have turned topsy-turvy since that devastating hour at Burton's inn. Somehow he was not able to confine his thoughts to Hetty Castleton alone. She seemed to sink into the background, despite the absolute he had been so ready, so eager to grant her on hearing the story from Sara's lips. Not that his resolve to search her out and claim her in spite of everything was likely to weaken, but that the absorbing figure of Sara Wrاندall stood out most clearly in his reflections.

What an amazing creature she was! He could not drive her out of his thoughts, even when he tried to concentrate them on the one person who was dearest to him of all in all the world, his warm-hearted, adorable Hetty. Strange contrasts suggested themselves to him as he strode along, head bent and shoulders hunched. He could not help contrasting the two women. He loved Hetty; he would always love her, of that he was positive. She was Sara's superior in every respect, infinitely so, he argued. And yet there was something in Sara that could crowd this adored one, this perfect one out of his thoughts for the time being. He found it difficult to concentrate his thoughts on Hetty Castleton.

How white and ill Sara had looked when she said good night to him at the door! The memory of her dark, mysterious eyes haunted him; he could see them in the night about him. They had been full of pain; there were torrents of tears behind them. They had glistened as if furnished by the fires of fever.

Even as he wrote his long, triumphant letter to Hetty Castleton, the picture of Sara Wrاندall encroached upon his mental vision. He could not drive it out. He thought of her as she had appeared to him early in the spring; through all the varying stages of their growing intimacy; through the interesting days when he vainly tried to translate her matchless beauty by means of wretched pigments; up to this present hour in which she was revealed, and yet not revealed, to him. Her vivid face was always before him, between his eyes and the thin, white paper on which he scribbled so eagerly. Her feverish eyes were looking into his; she was reading what he wrote before it appeared on the surface of the sheet!

His letter to Hetty was a triumph of skill and diplomacy, achieved after many attempts. He found it hard not to say too much, and quite as difficult not to say too little. He spent hours over this all-important missive. At last it was finished. He read and re-read it, searching for the slightest flaw: a fatal word or suggestion that might create in her mind the slightest doubt as to his sincerity. She was sure to read this letter a great many times, and always with the view to finding something between the lines: such as pity, resignation, an enforced conception of loyalty, or even faith! He meant that she should find nothing there but love. It was full of tenderness, full of hope, full of promise. He was coming to her with a steadfast, enduring love in his heart, he wanted her now more than ever before.

There was no mention of Challis Wrاندall, and but once was Sara's name used. There was nothing in the letter that could have betrayed their joint secret to the most acute outsider, and yet she would understand that he had wrung everything from Sara's lips. Her secret was his.

He decided that it would not be safe to anticipate the letter by a cablegram. He was not likely that any message he could send would have the desired effect. Instead of reassuring her, in all probability it would create fresh alarm.

Sleep did not come to him until after three o'clock. At two he got up and deliberately added a postscript to the letter he had written. It was in the nature of a poignant plea for Sara Wrاندall. Even as he penned these lines, he shuddered at the thought of what she had planned to do to Hetty Castleton. Staring hard at the black window before him, the pen still in his hand, he allowed his thoughts to dwell so intimately on the subject of his well-meant postscript that her ashen face with its burning eyes seemed to take shape in the night beyond. It was a long time before he could get rid of the illusion. Afterwards he tried to conjure up Hetty's face and to drive out the likeness of the other woman, and found that he could not recall a single feature in the face of the girl he loved!

When he reached Southlook in the morning, he found that nearly all of the doors and windows were boarded up. Wagons were standing in the stable yard, laden with trunks and crates. Servants without livery were scurrying about the halls. There was an air of finality about their movements.

"Yes, sir," said Watson, in reply to his question, "we are in a rush. Mrs. Wrاندall expects to close the house this evening, sir. We all go up this afternoon, I suppose you know, sir, we have taken a new apartment in town."

"No!" exclaimed Booth.
"Yes, sir, we have, sir. They've been decorating it for the past two weeks. Seems like she didn't care for the old one we had. As a matter of fact, I didn't care much for it, either. She's taken one of them expensive ones looking out over the park, sir. You know we used to look out over Madison avenue, sir, and God knows it wasn't hinderspin'. Yes, sir, we go up this afternoon. Mrs. Wrاندall will be down in a second, thank you, sir."

Booth actually was startled by her appearance when she entered the room a few minutes later. She looked positively ill.

"My dear Sara," he cried anxiously, "this is too bad. You are making yourself ill. Come, come, this won't do."

"I shall be all right in a day or two," she said, with a weary little gesture. "I have been nervous. The strain was too great, Brandon. This is the reaction you might say."

"Your hand is hot, your eyes look feverish. You'd better see your doctor as soon as you get to town. An ounce of prevention, you know."

"Well," she said, with a searching look into his eyes, "have you written to her?"

"Yes. Posted it at seven o'clock this morning."

"I trust you did not go so far as to—well, to volunteer a word in my behalf. You were not to do that, you know."

He looked uncomfortable. "I'm afraid I did take your name in vain," he equivocated. "You are a—wonderful woman, Sara," he went on, moved to the remark by a curious influence that he could not have explained any more than he could have accounted for the sudden gush of emotion that took possession of him. She ignored the tribute. "You will persuade her to come to New York with you?"

"For your sake, Sara, if she won't come for mine."

"She knows the cage is open," was her way of dismissing the subject. "I am glad you came over. I have a letter from Leslie. It came this morning. You may be interested in what he has to say of Hetty—and of yourself." She smiled faintly. "He is determined that you shall not be without a friend while he is alive."

"Les isn't such a rotter, Sara. He's spoiled, but he is hardly to be blamed for that."

"I will read his letter to you," she said, and there was no little significance in the way she put it. She held the letter in her hand, but he had failed to notice it before. Now he saw that it was a crumpled ball of paper. He was obliged to wait for a minute or two while she restored it to a readable condition. "He was in London when this was written," she explained, turning to the window for light. She glanced swiftly over the first page until she found the place where she meant to begin. "I suppose Hetty Castleton has written that we met in Lucerne two weeks ago," she read. "Curious coincidence in connection with it, too. I was with her father, Col. Braid Castleton, when we came upon her most unexpectedly. I ran across him in Paris just before the aviation meet, and got to know him rather well. He's a fine chap, don't you think? I confess I was somewhat surprised to learn that he didn't know she'd left America. He explained it quite naturally, however. He'd been ill in the north of Ireland and must have missed her letters. Hetty was on the point of leaving for Italy. We didn't see much of her. But, by Jove, Sara, I am more completely gone on her than ever. She is adorable. Now that I've met her father, who had the beastly misfortune to miss old Murgatroyd's funeral, I can readily see where in the saying 'blood will tell' applies to her. He is a prince. He came over to London with me the day after we left Hetty in Lucerne, and I had him in to meet mother and Vivian at Claridge's. They like him immensely. He set us straight on a good many points concerning the Glynn and Castleton families. Of course, I knew they were among the best over here, but I didn't know how fine they were until we prevailed on him to talk a little about himself. You will be glad to hear that he is coming over with us on the Mauretania. She sails the twenty-seventh. We'll be on the water by the time you get this letter. It had been our intention to sail last week, but the colonel had to go to Ireland for a few days to settle some beastly squabbles among the tenants. Next year he wants me to come over for the shooting. He isn't going back to India for two years, you may be interested to hear. Two years' leave. Lots of influence, believe me! We've been expecting him back in London since day before yesterday. I dare say he found matters worse than he suspected and has been delayed. He has been negotiating for the sale of some of his property in Belfast—factory sites, I believe. He is particularly anxious to close the deal before he leaves England. Had to lift a mortgage on the property, before he could think of making the sale. I staked him to four thousand pounds, to tide him over. Of course, he is eager to make the sale. 'Gad, I almost had to beg him to take the money. Terribly proud and haughty, as the butler would say. He said he wouldn't sleep well until he has returned the filthy lucre. We are looking for him back any hour now. But if he shouldn't get here by Friday, we will sail without him. He said he would follow by the next boat, in case anything happened that he didn't catch the Mauretania."

Sara interrupted herself to offer an ironic observation: "If Hetty did not despise her father so heartily, I should advise you to look farther for a father-in-law, Brandon. The colonel is a bad lot. Estates in the north of Ireland! Poor Leslie!" She laughed softly.

"He'll not show up, eh?"

"Not a bit of it," she said. "He may be charged to profit and loss in Leslie's books. This part of the letter will interest you," she went on, as if all that had gone before was of no importance to him. "I hear interesting news concerning you, my dear girl. My heartiest congratulations if it is all true. Brandy is one in a million. I have hoped all along to have him as a full-fledged brother-in-law, if that's the way you'd put it. Father writes that every one is talking about it, and saying what a fine thing it is. He has a feeling of delicacy about approaching you in the matter, and I fancy it's just as well until everything is settled. I wish you'd let me make a suggestion, however. Wouldn't it be wise to let us all get together and talk over the business end of the game? Brandy's a fine chap, a corker, in fact, but the question is: has he got it in him to take Challis' place in the firm? You've got to consider the future as well as the present, my dear. We all do. With his artistic temperament he might play hob with your interests, and ours too, for that matter. Wouldn't it be wise for me to sound him a bit before we take him into the firm? Forgive me for suggesting this, but, as you know, your interests are mine, and I'm terribly keen about seeing you get the best of everything. By the way, wasn't he a bit gone on Hetty? Passing fancy, of course, and not deep enough to hurt anybody. Good old Brandy!"

Booth Was Startled by Her Appearance.

"There is more, Brandon, but it's of no consequence," she said, tossing the letter upon the table. "You see how the land lays."

Booth was pale with annoyance. "By Jove, Sara, what an insufferable ass he is!"

"The shoe pinches?"

"Oh, it's such perfect rot! I'm sorry on your account. Have you ever heard of such gall?"

"Oh, he is merely acting as the family spokesman. I can see them now in solemn conclave. They think it their indisputable right to select a husband for me, to pass upon him, to accept or decline him as they see fit, to say whether he is a proper man to hang up his hat and coat in the offices of Wrاندall & Co."

"Do you mean to say—"

"Let's not talk about it, Brandon. It is too silly."

They fell to discussing her plans for the immediate future, although the minds of both were at work with something else.

"Now that I have served my purpose, I suppose you will not care to see so much of me," she said, as he prepared to take leave of her.

"Served your purpose? What do you mean?"

"I should have put it differently. You have been most assiduous in your efforts to force the secret from me. It has been accomplished. Now do you understand?"

"That isn't fair, Sara," he protested. "If you'll let me come to see you, in spite of what the gossips and Mr. Redmond Wrاندall predict, you may be sure I will be as much in evidence as ever. I suppose I have been a bit of a nuisance, hanging on as I have."

"I admire your perseverance. More than that, I admire your courage in accepting the situation as you have. I only hope you may win her over to your way of thinking, Brandon. Goodbye."

"I shall go up to town tomorrow, kit and bag. When shall I see you? We have a great deal left to talk about before I sail."

"Come when you like."

"You really want me to come?"

"Certainly."

He studied her pale, tired face for a moment, and then shook his head. "You must take care of yourself," he said. "You are unstrung. Get a good rest and—forget certain things if you can. Everything will come out all right in the end."

"It depends on what one is willing to accept as the end," he said.

ASQUITH TAKES UP A FRESH LOAD OF TOIL

British Premier Adds to His Burdensome Duties.

Belfast, March 31.—Maxim guns in twenty tea chests have been landed in this city under the noses of the customs officers, despite the prohibition of the importation of arms into Ireland. The guns were packed in sections and surrounded by tea. The duty on tea was paid in London, from which place the guns were cleared.

London, March 31.—Sensation is following sensation in the political crisis. Of all the amazing happenings of the last few days none has so thoroughly electrified parliament and the country as Premier Asquith's dramatic announcement that he had decided to add the burdensome duties of the war office to the premiership and the office of first lord of the treasury and president of the committee on imperial defense, which he already holds. It will throw so much work on his shoulders that it will be impossible for him to carry on the combined duties for long. It affords eloquent testimony of the chaos at the war office and the disastrous plight into which the government has floundered. Mr. Asquith at the war office will have the advice of Lord Haldane, former secretary of war.

Viscount Morley's resignation as lord president of the council is expected today. Resignations have become a standing dish for the last few days, so it comes with little surprise to learn that those of Lieutenant General Sir Arthur Paget, commander of the forces in Ireland, and Winston Churchill will probably be announced at the same time. General Paget was not instructed to put any hypothetical questions to the officers at the Curragh. This is interpreted as throwing another victim to the wolves, and according to a Dublin report, General Paget so regards it. The Liberal organs appear to be delighted at Premier Asquith's coup. They say it is a bold stroke which displays Mr. Asquith's greatness and courage. It will touch the country's imagination, deepen the loyalty of his followers and fully restore the prestige of the government.

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION Important to Everyone.

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than Nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, annoying bladder troubles, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, may be weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

Many physicians claim that an herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention the Seymour Daily Republican.

BOY BANDITS TRIED TO ROB HOUSEHOLDER

Evansville Youth Confesses Act to the Police.

Evansville, Ind., March 31.—According to the police, Ralph Perkins, eighteen years old, has confessed that he was the masked bandit who shot through a door, wounding William Schmitt, a laborer, in an attempted robbery. Perkins implicated Otto Zimmer and Arthur Kinkel. All are less than twenty years old. They are well known in police circles.

Schmitt and his wife were counting money in their home at night when they heard a knock at the front door. Opening it, Schmitt was confronted with a man leveling a revolver and with a handkerchief covering his face. Schmitt at first treated the intrusion as a joke and, then, seeing the man was in earnest, attempted to close the door. The robber fired and the bullet inflicted a wound in Schmitt's arm that will cripple him for life.

Acting on a description of the hold-up man given by Schmitt, detectives arrested Perkins, finding him asleep in an old icebox in the rear of a grocery.

Standard Oil Dividend.

By United Press.
New York, April 1.—Standard Oil stockholders of record March 6th today received a $3 quarterly dividend and $3 extra for each share of stock held. The last dividend was $3 quarterly and $2 extra paid December 22nd.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Mrs. Marsh Ross is sick at her home on North Poplar street.

A daughter was born March 27 to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ahlbrand.

Harvey Woodruff, who has been conducting a lunch counter in Valonia, disposed of it and purchased another in Hayden.

Ernest Allen left this morning for Indianapolis where he will enlist as an electrician in the U. S. Navy. He expects to spend three years in this service.

George Tierney, who is employed on the Big Four at Indianapolis, was here today making arrangements to move his household goods to that place, and will live there in the future.

Ted Philpott, who has been employed as a drug clerk at Carter's Drug Store for the past eight months, has resigned his position and will be associated in the drug business with his father at Hillsboro. He left this morning for that place.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

INDIANA STUDY CLUB.

The regular meeting of the Indiana Study Club will be held at the home of Mrs. L. M. Mains, Jr. on North Seventh street Thursday afternoon. The program as arranged will be presented.

PICTURE OF WILSON TO GO ON WALL AT POST OFFICE

Likeness of Secretary of State Bryan Will Also Have Place Under New Administration.

For the last sixteen years the local postmasters have been members of the Republican party and in keeping with the established custom the pictures of the Republican presidents making the appointments and other prominent leaders of the party have had conspicuous places in their private offices. Postmaster Swope will follow the custom but will replace the pictures of the Republicans with those of President Wilson and Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan.

Former Postmaster Remy had the pictures of President Taft, Charles W. Fairbanks and other leaders in his office where they were "spotted" by the incoming postmaster as soon as he entered the room. "Mr. Remy will likely have use for those pictures," said Postmaster Swope, "as I will very soon place the likenesses of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan above my desk." The hanging of the pictures will be an open statement to the public that the Seymour office is under Democratic control, and the local members of the party are anxiously waiting for the time when they can look upon their leaders in the private office of the postmaster.

CONTRACTS ARE MADE FOR LARGE TOMATO ACREAGE

Seymour Canning Company Expects to Handle Unusually Big Crop This Summer.

In a short time the tomato growers in this part of the county will sow the seed for the crops which will be sold to the canning factories. Practically all the seed will be in the ground by the twentieth of this month. The Seymour Canning Company has contracted for a large acreage and expects to handle the largest crop for several years. The contracts are made with the farmers in advance of the time when the crop is marketed. Growers find that the crop is profitable.

Farmers in the vicinity of Four Corners were endeavoring to locate a canning factory there and the proposition was discussed with the Seymour Canning Company. Contrary to the reports it was not the intention to remove the plant from Rockford but to establish another there. The locating of this factory will depend upon the acreage which can be contracted. Farmers who are interested say that if the factory is not built this year they will endeavor to have it in operation in 1915.

Nellie K. Deppert Dead.

Nellie K. Deppert, daughter of Mrs. Katherine Deppert, died at her home, 409 East Fifth street this morning after a two weeks' illness. She was twenty-six years of age. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family home, conducted by Rev. M. E. Prather, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Burial at Riverview cemetery.

ULSTER QUESTION IS NEARING SETTLEMENT

British Political Storm Apparently Subsiding.

London, April 1.—The discussion of home rule was renewed in an atmosphere of conciliation, calm having followed the tumultuous passions of the last few days' debate in the house of commons. A moderate speech by Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary and acting government leader, in the house during the absence of Premier Asquith had a markedly tranquillizing effect.

The talk in the lobbies of the house is that a settlement of the Ulster question by consent is appreciably nearer, but such talk has been heard before. The debate will be continued, and the division on the second reading of the bill has been fixed for April 6.

The Unionists have not yet decided whether they will name a candidate to oppose Premier Asquith in the election at East Fife. The local Unionist council will meet tomorrow and decide whether or not Colonel Sprot, who has opposed Mr. Asquith on several previous occasions, will again be a candidate if it should be decided to make a fight.

A diversion has been called by the notorious Jim Larkin, the leader of the Dublin transport workers' strike, who made a failure to "wave the fiery cross" when he visited England, butting in on the election. When his intention of contesting East Fife with Premier Asquith was first reported, many persons regarded it as a joke, but it seems to be a fact that Larkin is going to run, although as yet he has issued no statement. He will not get the support of the official labor party, but the Socialists profess to believe that he will draw a considerable number of votes from Mr. Asquith. If so this may affect Premier Asquith's chances of election in the event of the Unionists making a fight for the seat.

WOMAN ACQUITTED BY JURY

Mrs. Drown Crazy When She Killed Husband, Is the Verdict.

San Francisco, April 1.—Despite newspaper agitation against juries freeing women who murder sweethearts and husbands in fits of passion, Mrs. Millie Drown, a local society woman, was acquitted of the murder of her husband, Archer Drown, in superior court at Oakland. The jury was out twenty minutes.

The verdict was based on the belief that Mrs. Drown was not mentally competent when on Oct. 24 she killed her husband in their home in a fashionable district of Oakland. After the shooting she calmly attended a theater and told a friend her husband had slapped her and that she shot him.

Train Narrowly Escapes Wreck.

Bedford, Ind., April 1.—A fast south-bound Monon mail train escaped a serious wreck near Harrodsburg, twelve miles north of this city, when a truck of the locomotive left the track. An entire T-rail was driven through the mail car, but no one was injured.
